ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My thanks are due to Jan Svartvik, Professor Emeritus at Lund University and doctor honoris causa of Masaryk University Brno, for his constant support and encouragement and for his generous and kind supervision during my study stays at Lund University in 1994 and 1995.

I owe special thanks to Bengt Altenberg of Lund University and Professor Karin Aijmer of the University of Göteborg for the access they gave me to many sources used in the elaboration of this monograph.

My research work based on the texts from the London Lund Corpus started as early as in 1982. At that time, I was writing my CSc. dissertation on prosodic features from the point of view of functional sentence perspective under the supervision of the late Professor Jan Firbas. Despite my research interest in prosodic features, I was able to read the transcribed printed version only, since the access to recorded materials was not possible in those days. In 1992, thanks to the scholarship given to me by the British Council, I had the privilege of spending three months at the Survey of English Usage, University College London, consulting the subject matter with the late Professor Sidney Greenbaum.

I am much indebted to Professor Libuše Dušková from the Institute of English and American Studies, Charles University Prague, for many valuable suggestions and comments on the final draft of the manuscript. I am also grateful to Professor Jarmila Tárnayiková from the Department of English and American Studies, Palacký University Olomouc for her comments on the final version of the manuscript.

I also highly appreciate my cooperation with Andrew Oakland, M.A. from the Faculty of Education, Masaryk University Brno, who has done the proof-reading. For technical assistance, my sincere thanks are due to Mgr. Aleš Launer, my colleague at the Department of English and American Studies, Masaryk University Brno, and Dan Šlosar from the Computer Centre.

The author is grateful to acknowledge permission to reprint copyright material from the London-Lund Corpus, Texts S.1.1, S.1.2, S.1.3, S.1.4, S.1.5, S.1.6, S.1.7, S.1.8, S.6.1a,b,c, S.6.3, S.6.4, S.6.7, S.8.1 and S.8.3.
