DIALECTAL CLASSIFICATION OF MYCENAEAN
IN THE OPINION OF VARIOUS SCHOLARS

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

The intention of the editor of these Proceedings to organize a public inquiry into the problems of the dialectal character of Mycenaean proved to be a greater task than the editor himself originally supposed. During the summer months of 1966 not less than about 65 type-written pages of answers came from 17 scholars working in 10 various countries. These were:

- J. Chadwick, Downing College, Cambridge, England
- R. Coleman, Emmanuel College, Cambridge, England
- W. Cowgill, Yale University, U.S.A.
- M. Doria, Università degli studi, Trieste, Italia
- R. A. Crossland, University of Sheffield, England
- N. S. Grinbaum, Universitet Kišinev, SSSR
- A. Heubeck, Universität Erlangen, Bundesrepublik Deutschland
- H. Kodzu, University of Tokio, Japan
- W. Merlingen, Universität Wien, Österreich
- H. Mühlestein, Basel, Schweiz
- M. D. Petruševski, Universitet Skopje, Jugoslavija
- C. J. Ruijgh, Universiteit Amsterdam, Nederland
- O. Szemerényi, Universität Freiburg im Breisgau, Bundesrepublik Deutschland
- I. M. Tronskij, Institut Jazykoznanija, Leningrad, SSSR
- P. Wathelet, Université de Liège, Belgique
- T. B. L. Webster, University of London, England
- W. F. Wyatt, Brown University, Providence, U.S.A.

All the answers — irrespective of whether they were formulated separately or had the character of continuous articles — were distributed under the 13 headings of the questionnaire to be found on p. 50—51, some re-formulations being, of course, necessary, especially if a continuous contribution had been delivered.

On the request of the editor the whole inquiry has been commented upon and summarized by E. Risch, Universität Zürich, Schweiz.
